

Associated Building Material Distributors of America (ABM) currently has 46 distributor members encompassing 116 locations. Serving all 50 states and Canada, annual revenue is in excess of $3 billion. ABM has supplier agreements with approximately 70 industry-leading manufacturers.

Founded in 1975, ABM unites independent wholesale distributors and enhances performance and profitability through its collective buying power and shared best practices. Distributor members enjoy larger and more frequent rebates as a result of ABM's national footprint and global sourcing options.

The Allied Suppliers group values national distribution opportunities without the politics and difficulties typically associated with selling through national distributors. It is ABM's objective to be not only the best supplier to its customers, but the best customer to its suppliers.

The association provides an extensive list of benefits to its members, including:

- Special Access to Products and Brands
- Improved Rebates and Pricing
- First Look at New Products
- Key Industry Performance Metrics
- Key Financial Data
- Strategic Planning Assistance
- Importing Services
- Software Provider Recommendations
- Best Practices Recommendations
- Marketing Services
- ABM Member Newsletter
- Two member/supplier buying shows hosted annually

ABM's annual convention is a hallmark event and longstanding tradition for its distributor and manufacturer members. In addition to being a buying show, the event brings together industry leaders, reviews new and innovative products and hosts nationally recognized keynote speakers. Each year ABM carefully selects a non-profit organization as part of ABM's charitable giving program. Recent recipients of this program include World Vision, The Wounded Warrior Project and Susan G. Koman for the Cure.
